

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

Plumleaf Press Inc. will consider all manuscripts, but we particularly welcome books geared to women and children. We are interested in all genres, including poetry, literary fiction and non-fiction, and cookbooks.

We are committed to publishing diverse authors and illustrators. We particularly welcome writers and artists from historically underrepresented communities.

SUBMITTING A PROPOSAL:

Each submission must include the following:

1. A brief overview of the work (including a working title/subtitle; author bio and credentials; category of book)
2. Proposed table of contents and sample chapter(s)
3. Intended audience (demographic; why this book will appeal)
4. Market analysis (existing market; gaps in existing market that your book would fill)

Send submissions to:

We will try to respond within three months of receipt of the manuscript.

OUR STORY:

Plumleaf Press creates “books to linger over” – beautifully designed and produced books for readers, young and old. I came up with the name Plumleaf Press for a line of books for women and children by combining my father’s surname, Lee (李), which means plum, and my mother’s surname, Ye (葉), which means leaf.

In Chinese tradition, the plum, which blossoms even in the deepest winter, is a symbol of integrity, fortitude, tenacity, and blessing. A green leaf is a symbol of renewal and hope.
